Principles to Inform the Distribution of Transit Operations Funding from Senate Bill 125

The following six principles were used to inform the proposed distribution of funding. These principles were developed in partnership with Bay Area transit operators.

1. Use state and regional funds for transit operations to address the most dire shortfalls and avoid service cuts

Consistent with the legislative intent of Senate Bill (SB) 125, the distribution will consider the magnitude of shortfalls and the service cuts that would occur if shortfalls were not addressed in the distribution of state and regional funding for transit operations.

2. Prioritize high-ridership agencies and the provision of service for transit-dependent riders

In accordance with the SB 125 legislative intent, the distribution will consider the demographics of current riders and ridership markets in the distribution of funding. MTC encourages operators to use state and regional funds to prioritize the retention and restoration of service on high-ridership routes and those that serve a high number of transit-dependent riders.

3. Incentivize accountability of transit operators to improve coordination and customer experience

MTC will identify specific progress milestones related to improvements to coordination and customer experience that operators must meet prior to the distribution of funds. Requirements for coordination and customer experience improvements will be informed by the direction of the Regional Network Management Council, comprised of elected officials and transit operator representatives, and as such, MTC reserves the right to condition funding on the delivery specific initiatives at a future date.

4. Preserve flexibility to adjust distribution year to year as circumstance change

It is likely that shortfalls may change over time for a number of reasons, including operator-driven changes to service provision or ridership recovery trajectories that differ from estimates and alter revenue from sources such as fares and parking. As such, it is critical that MTC retain flexibility to adjust the distribution from year to year in response to decreasing or increasing shortfalls.

5. Ensure consistency and level footing across operator shortfall forecasts

Forecasting future shortfalls over a multi-year period requires many assumptions, including assumptions around future state operations funding, the effect of inflation on expenses, and the amount of service provided. These assumptions have meaningful impacts on the shortfall calculations. In order to prevent an operator being disadvantaged because the assumptions used in their forecast were different from those used by another operator, MTC has provided a set of standardized assumptions used by all operators to estimate shortfalls for the purpose of distribution.

6. Minimize impact to non-operating/capital and state of good repair programs

To the extent possible, the distribution will aim to not adversely affect the availability of funding for critical capital and state of good repair investment purposes. While deferral of discretionary capital projects may be needed to free up revenue for operations support, essential safety and state of good repair needs will be reflected in the distribution framework.
